

SCHUETZENFEST PRIZES.

THE WINNERS IN THE BBO CONTESTS AT GLENDALE PARK.

Fred C. Ross of Williamsburg Crowned Schutzen-König by Gus Zimmermann's Little Daughter—Schutzen-Meute Meres on the Closing Day of the Festival.

A large number of people made their way to Glendale Park yesterday to see the closing events of the National Schützenfest. The principal ceremonies of the day were the awarding of the prizes and the crowning of the shooting king, Fred C. Ross of Williamsburgh. In the morning, the prizes were arranged in the large hall, and at 2 o'clock President William V. Weber, assisted by several officers of the Bund, began the work of distribution. Mr. Weber made a brief speech, in which he congratulated the winning marksmen, and spoke of the great success of the fest. Then there were three cheers for the Schützenbund, and the prizes were given out.

The long list of awards made this a tedious job, and the work was not completed until after 6 o'clock. Meanwhile, the winners, as fast as they received their prizes, went with their friends about the park and made merriment. The marksmen didn't receive prizes before shooting. Those who did, so that all were happy.

It was a busy day for the officials, and the members of the Committee of Award were the hardest-worked persons on the grounds, except possibly the waiters. The latter were kept on the run, by the members of the different corps, who, with their friends, lingered until late in the evening before quitting the park.

The prizes first given out were for the best shots on the Man, Standard, Point, and Ring targets. They were all cash prizes, ranging from $500 to $1,000. The Californians captured two of the best. George Helm of the San Francisco Schützen Verein got two first prizes, one on the Ring target and one on the Germania target, each $500. A. Strecker of the Columbia Rifle Club of San Francisco, who made the best score on the Man target, 97 out of a possible 100, got $200. The first prize on the target of honor Columbia went to William Vorbach of Williamsburgh, who made 72 points out of a possible 75. As he had first chosen, he took Jacob Huppert's silver service, valued at $1,000. Vorbach was closely pressed by F. P. Schuster of San Francisco. Theo. Moore, the veteran, who was an inspector of severs in the Department of Public Works, is still fighting to secure an office as keeper on the Croton Aqueduct. His case was before Judge Stover in Supreme Court, Chambers, yesterday upon an application made in his behalf by Roger Foster, for a mandamus to compel the action of the Civil Service Board, striking his name off the eligible list for appointment as keeper. Moore had passed the examination and was at the head of the list, but the Civil Service Board, in its report to the Commissioner of Public Works, in which Moore was charged with blackmail and drunkenness, struck him off the list. Judge Patterson last week refused to grant a mandamus to the Commissioners to replace Moore's name on the list. Judge Stover reserved his decision.
